

Šárka Horáčková

Education: University of Chemistry and Technology, Prague; 1988 - 1991 PhD in Chemistry and Technology of Food at the UCT, Prague with the topic "Proteolysis of milk proteins"

Fellowship: 1989 Tallinn Technical University, Estonia
1992 International Centre for Genetic Engineering and Biochemistry, Trieste, Italy
2011 Centro de Referencia para Lactobacilos, Tucumán, Argentina

She is now working as Assistant professor at the Department of Dairy, Fat and Cosmetics, UCT Prague. At current position she is responsible for courses for MSc. and BSc. students on Probiotics and Functional Food and Food Microbiology. In research she focusses on the properties of lactic acid bacteria and their application in food production.