

Petra Patakova PhD is an associate professor of biotechnology at the Department of Biotechnology of the University of Chemistry and Technology in Prague. Her main research interests include microbial production of biofuels, namely butanol and ethanol, from renewable substrate and currently also physiology and genetics of solventogenic clostridia. She is also involved in teaching of food biotechnology, food and pharmaceutical legislation, is supervisor of bachelor, diploma and PhD students and collaborates with foreign researchers and also with Czech food industrial companies. Her research hobby is a production and biological activity of Monascus pigments because this was the topic of her PhD thesis performed at the Institute of Microbiology of the Czech Academy of Sciences in period 1990-1994.